PARKER INDICTED IN OAKLAND GRAFT

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Some day after dinner speakers will discover that no matter how interesting their subject may be their audience will tire after an hour or more of listening. This is especially true if you have just enjoyed a good dinner.

* * *

Prof. Anthony Blanks in addressing the Business and Professional women Tuesday night omitted one slam at women that we have hidden away somewhere. We can't quote it exactly but believe it was Gorky who said "when I am ready to die, I shall tell the world what I think about women and then I shall pull the coffin lid down over me."

* * *

Must have been a married man.

* * *

According to Professor Blanks it won't be long now before men will be generally recognized as only the breadwinner. Women will rule while men will be allowed to work. What we would like to ask the Professor is, why doesn't he look around a little and keep his speech up to date?

* * *

Anyway, it was a rattling good talk. He said lots of nice things about women and that is what most of them were there to hear.

* * *

He also said plenty of things that weren't so very nice but they were all credited to someone else.

* * *

And what he said was mostly true.

* * *

That fashion review which the group of fair young misses presented was entertaining as well as instructive. Too bad the audience applauded so loudly that we didn't get a chance to hear the description that was supposed to go with the "pictures."

* * *

But wasn't that just like women? They were all set to have a rousing meeting on women's rights but it had to have a style show. Mind you, we are not objecting to it for we enjoyed it immensely, but you just naturally can't separate women and new styles or old styles for that matter either.

* * *

There are a couple of organizations in Richmond which could take a lesson from the Business and Professional Women's club on how to put on an interesting program.

* * *

Which reminds us that an after luncheon speaker in this city that we happen to know was more or less disturbed because no one took the trouble to thank him or speak to him after he had delivered a most interesting and instructive talk.

YESTERDAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE—

Continued tariff debate, increasing the duty on plate glass; decided to vote tomorrow on motion to reconsider the vote last week increasing the duty on sugar.

Passed first deficiency appropriation bill carrying $100,000,000 emergency appropriation for Federal Farm board.

HOUSE—

Judiciary committee resumed prohibition hearings receiving testimony of more than 30 women dry leaders.

CARQUINEZ ARRIVALS

Arrivals at the Hotel Carquinez yesterday included A. F. Anderson, M. D. King, of Hollywood; E. Colecough, Fresno; W. F. Douglas, Fresno; B. I. Boyd, San Bernardino; and J. B. Duggan of San Francisco.

It was announced that every room in the hotel is still occupied, there having been no vacancies the past few days.

PASSENGERS TO BE TAKEN ON TRIP

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—UP—A fifty passenger flying boat, with eight passengers and crewmen aboard, may attempt to span the broad Pacific in a San Francisco-Tokio flight this spring, according to J. Morton Stelling, sponsor of the project.

Stelling, president of the Stelling Aircraft corporation of New Jersey, plans to pilot the big ship hisme'f, taking eight companions with him.

Stops at Honolulu and Guam are planned.

Stelling stated the object of the flight would be to demonstrate the practicability of trans-Pacific flights on a commercial basis.

A Stelling plane, so equipped that if forced down it could ride comfortably on the waves in mid-ocean, is now under construction for the trip.

Stelling planned to start from San Francisco on his hazardous air voyage, late in April or early in May.

C. C. DISCUSSES NEW ZONE LAW

A thorough discussion of the proposed new industrial zone ordinance amendments for Richmond by the chamber of commerce directors yesterday resulted in the decision to send a chamber committee for a conference with the councilmen and the city planning commissioners next Monday night before the ordinance comes up for final passage.

The chamber delegation will include the industrial committee headed by E. B. Bull augmented by special members to be named by Bull and P. M. Sanford, president. Fear that certain phases of the proposed ordinance might discourage new industries from coming to Richmond was expressed at the chamber meeting yesterday. All angles will be considered at the conference on Monday evening.

Tully Foe Pays $25 Fine In Court

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—A desire to land a right hand punch on the chin of Jim Tully—only a desire and not doing it—cost Murphy McHenry $25 today in municipal court.

Judge Leonard Wilson fined the newspaperman that much after hearing him accused of instigating a fight in the Brown Derby cafe.

McHenry, witnesses said, stood up and announced that he was going to "sock" Tully, because "Tully hit my friend, John Gilbert." But Dr. Frank Nolan hit McHenry to prevent trouble and McHenry hit the floor. Tully fled.

When the $25 fine was assessed, up stepped "Death Valley Scotty" to pay the money, which indicated he may not be as financially depressed as he claimed recently the stock market had left him.

Pinole Damage Verdict Appealed

MARTINEZ, Mar. 12—Appeal from a decision of Justice of the Peace W. P. Terry of Pinole, was filed in superior court here today by Lloyd R. Capps. Judge Terry refused Capps a judgment against George W. Aljian of Crockett and granted Aljian a verdict of $189 for damages done to his auto in a collision last June.

Capps had sued for $140 and Aljian filed a counter suit, on which he was given judgment.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Daniel W. Welch 45, of El Cerrito and Elizabeth Foster, 46 of Portland applied for a marriage license in Sacramento recently.

Ernest H Howard, 36 of Oakland and Bertha M. Ross of Richmond, applied for a marriage license in Oakland yesterday.

Demands Portrait

MRS. DOROTHY CALVIT, daughter of the late Lillian Russell, who will wage legal battle for mother's portrait, painted by Howard Chandler Christy.

R. ARMSTEAD FINAL RITES HERE FRIDAY

Robert G. Armstead, 61 of 2931 Barrett avenue, and a pioneer Richmond hardware merchant, died at the family home yesterday morning. He had been bedridden for only a week, although ill for some time.

Funeral services will be held in the Wilson and Kratzer parlors Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Alpha Masonic lodge officiating. Cremation will follow at the Berkeley crematory.

Armstead, who had been proprietor of the hardware store bearing his name at Eighth street and Macdonald avenue the last ten years, has been in the business for approximately 50 years. He came to Richmond 17 years ago and was associated with his brother-in-law, R. B. Dougall in the hardware business.

The late hardware dealer was well known in fraternal circles, being a member of the Richmond Elks lodge, Alpha Masonic lodge, Richmond Commandery of Knights Templar, the local Royal Arch and the Aahmes Shrine in Oakland.

He was born in England but has spent most of his life in California. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Armstead and relatives in England.

R. Burns Heads College Fete

Robert Burns a graduate of the Richmond union high school, has been named student director of the International Week celebration which will be held at the College of the Pacific, Stockton, March 23 to 30.

Burns resides in Richmond and is one of the many Richmond boys who attend the College of the Pacific.

A number of lectures by leading Europeans and Oriental publishers, churchmen and diplomats have been arranged.

Boy Loses Eye At Golf Lesson

GLENDALE, March 12.—UP—Thirteen-year-old Frank Oakley was showing his brother, Johnny, 11, the correct golf stance today.

"Like this, Johnny, see?" Frank explained. Johnny leaned forward to watch and his older brother swung. The iron head of the club struck Johnny in the left eye, putting it out.

L. HALL WINS EAGLE SCOUT TEST

Eagle Scout Lloyd Hall will represent the Richmond Eagle Scouts at final examinations to be held in Martinez March 25 to select the county Scout who will take part in the Ansel Hall expedition this summer.

So close was the competition that T. G. Gray and Scout Executive Robert F. Cox had to hold two tests for the three boys before the winner was selected.

Thomas G. Gray of Richmond, county Court of Honor chairman, will be on the board that will examine the seven Eagle Scouts from this county who will compete for a place on the Hall expedition. The examinations will be held at the courtroom of Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie.

A large number of Richmond persons interested in Scouting will accompany Hall to the examinations.

One Eagle Scout from this county will be selected to join the expedition which will visit national parks in June, July and August.

ALSTROM WILL CONSIDER SUIT

Justice of the Peace A. A. Alstrom has taken under consideration the suit of T. L. DeLong against his brother, J. A. DeLong, for $235 alleged to be due for a board bill.

T. L. DeLong, who is represented by Lee D. Windren, recently won a suit against his brother when J. A. DeLong failed to appear in court to answer the claim.

Before DeLong could assess his brother, J. A. DeLong filed application for a writ of prohibition in the Alameda Superior Court, claiming that T. L. DeLong failed to give the proper jurisdiction in his suit. The writ was granted by Superior Judge T. J. Harris in Oakland, and as a result the suit had to be tried again.

Judge Alstrom heard evidence in the suit yesterday. He will make his decision today or tomorrow.

Prison Change Helps Prisoner

MARTINEZ, March 12.—George Groppe, now serving a sentence of 300 days in the county jail for possession of liquor, will not have to return to Ohio to finish a prison sentence, according to word received here yesterday.

The reason for Groppe's good fortune is that a contract no longer exists between Stark county, Ohio and Belmont county, which dealt with the former conty incarcerating the latter county's prisoners.

Groppe when arrested, confessed to Chief of Police Charles Scudero to escaping from the Stark county workhouse. The reply to Scudero's query to confirm the statement, disclosed that Groppo had escaped from the Ohio workhouse, but was not wanted.

Wealthy Widow Slain In Hotel

BUTTE, Mont., Mar. 12—(U.P.)—The body of Mrs. Christina Wilson, wealthy Butte widow, her head crushed and battered, and a towel stuffed down her throat, was found by police today lashed to the four corners of a bed in a room of her hotel.

Detectives said the elderly woman was lured to the vacant room by a robber on the pretense of renting it, and gruesomely hacked with an iron bar.

Her private apartment had been ransacked, and valuable jewelry, stock certificates and bonds were reported missing.

Caused Riot At Contest

EMMEY VAFIADES, of Patras, Greece, although an easy winner in the popular vote was not considered in a beauty contest. The decision of the judges started a riot.

RED CROSS PLANS FIRST AID COURSE

Otto S. Lund, field representative of the national chapter of Red Cross was an honored guest at the session of the Richmond chapter of Red Cross last night in the chapter's headquarters.

Lund assisted and advised with the directors in regard to the branch chapters at Pinole and also with reference to the installation of a branch at El Cerrito.

Arrangements have been made for a meeting to be held in El Cerrito April 10 at the American Legion headquarters. At this time Lund will meet with the committee and others interested for the purpose of organizing a branch chapter of Red Cross in El Cerrito.

Lauds Chapter

He complimented the local chapter for its deep interest in Red Cross work and for the success of

CHARITY WORK TOLD AT MEET

The need of a confidential charity exchange here was stressed at a meeting of representatives of Richmond clubs, lodges and churches in the Richmond Health Center here yesterday.

Mrs. Ruth McCord, of Martinez, director of the Social Service bureau of Contra Costa county, was in charge of the meeting.

It was stressed at the meeting that to prevent duplication of charity work here, there should be an exchange where all charity cases would be registered and each organization would be assigned cases to take care of.

Representatives of the organizations gave reports on the work they are carrying on this year and told of their needs.

Organizations represented at yesterday's meeting included the Social Service bureau, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, United Spanish War Veterans, Salvation Army, Presbyterian church, Health Center, Red Cross, St. Edmund's Guild, Richmond Council of P. T. A., and the First Baptist church.

Gasoline Prices Decline In North

PORTLAND, Ore., March 12.—UP—New life was put into Portland's gasoline war today when one retailer sold his product for 13 1-2 cents a gallon—the lowest price since recent hostilities opened. Gasoline could be purchased in several places from 15 to 16 cents. Lower prices were expected on the strength of a report that wholesalers were preparing for a fight to the finish.

QUICK END OF NAVY MEET SEEN

LONDON, March 12.—UP—A rapid conclusion of the five power conference was predicted by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand tonight after the French had failed anew in attempt to win a security pledge and break down Italy's demand for parity.

Briand said he believed the conference would finish by the end of next week or the beginning of the following for a good two weeks ahead of the recent estimate of Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

Two developments featured today's conference discussions. First, the French spokesman indicated that France had finally abondoned hope of obtaining a security pact by which the other powers would guarantee her against aggression.

FOUR TO FACE COURT TODAY

Four men were in the city jail last night, awaiting hearing before Police Judge C. A. Odell this morning. The four were arrested by Richmond police last night.

Edwin Jenkins, 690 Long Ridge road, Berkeley, is charged with reckless driving and disturbing the peace; James Ralph, 2459 Leconte avenue, Berkeley, is charged with intoxication and throwing glass into the street; Orwin Corey, 1730 Lincoln avenue, Berkeley, faces charges of disturbing the peace, and a Richmond boy whose name is withheld by police because of his age.

The four were arrested in an automobile at Eighteenth street and Virginia avenue last night, according to police reports.

The four are said by police to be students at the University of California.

Flier Dies In Airplane Crash

POCATELLO, Idaho, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Moele Morgan, 43, a carpenter and former Canadian flier, was killed instantly when his airplane crashed from a height of 3000 feet near here tonight.

Witnesses said Morgan apparently lost control of the plane after gaing into a tailspin. He had not flown for several years, although he claimed to have 1800 flying hours to his credit. The plane belonged to Judd Parker, a friend.

Morgan is survived by his widow and two children.

Compton To Head Massachusetts Tech

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Appointment of Dr. Karl Taylor Compton, head of the department of physics at Princeton University, as president of the Massachusette Institute of Technology, was announced late today by President Samuel W. Stratton.

The announcement was made after a meeting of the corporation of the institute. Dr. Compton will take office next July, when Dr. Stratton, now president of the institution, will become chairman of the executive committee, a newly created executive position.

Actors Win In Fight Over Wages

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—UP—A $4940 settlement of wages owed to employes of the Buck Jones Wild West show by Buck Jones, former film actor, was stipulated in superior court today. Thirty-four employes protested to the California State Labor commission after the shown closed. Wages totaling $7139 still are owing.

Finds Place To Park Hat

MEGAN LLOYD GEORGE has found a place to park her bonnet in the House of Parliament, thus settling a "social problem". Miss George puts her hat in her office, instead of parking it with the hats of other P M's on a bench.

REILLY LOSES LAST APPEAL, HANGS FRIDAY

SAN QUENTIN STATE PRISON, March 12.—UP—A final effort to save him having failed, Alphonse Reilly, 22, convicted murderer, was taken to the death chamber adjoining San Quentin's execution room tonight to await the march to the gallows Friday morning.

Governor C. C. Young refused to grant the St. Louis youth a reprieve while lengthy tests of his sanity might be made.

"I guess I haven't anything to say," Reilly said to newspapermen when he learned of the failure. "Good luck to you all."

BALL SCOUT FINED $200

Willis E. Butler, Richmond baseball scout for the St. Louis Browns was fined $200 by Police Judge J. F. Plank last night in the El Cerrito police court on a charge of reckless driving.

Butler was originally arrested on charges of driving while drunk and hit and run. These charges were reduced to reckless driving.

E. C. Brown of Oakland, paid a fine of $100 on a charge of possession of liquor.

Others fined by Judge Plank were M. F. Siefert, speeding, $10; L. E. Marshall, overloaded truck, $27.80; A. M. Polese, speeding, $10; S. J. McDonough, speeding, $10, and L. D. Jones, Jr., speeding, $10.

American Legion To Meet Tonight

A business meting of the Richmond post of American Legion will be held tonight at the Memorial hall under the direction of L. R. Sears, commander.

Every member has been urged to be in attendance.

GRAND JURY ACCUSES 4 MORE

OAKLAND, March 12.—Following testimony that there had been a "four way split at the City Hall" on patent paving in Oakland, the Alameda County Grand Jury today indicted four more men on two charges each of conspiracy to bribe and bribery.

Foremost among the names of the men indicted, loomed that of William H. Parker, Oakland commissioner and former head of the Streets department.

The other men indicted were Ray Lamberson, executive secretary to Parker, until the latters' department was taken over by Commissioner Frank Colbourn; John G. Garbutt, Oakland representative of a patent paving machine and former assistant superintendent of the County Detention Home; and Floyd Van Noy, Garbutt's partner, and the man responsible for the testimony regarding the "four way split at the City Hall."

Superior Judge Fred V. Wood set bail at from $5000 to $10,000 and ordered the arrests to be made by Sheriff Burton F. Becker, who will face the court tomorrow on a Grand Jury "accusation" containing 13 graft charges.

Chief Excused

In ordering Becker to serve the warrants, Judge Wood said that as the Oakland chief of police was an appointee of the city council, he did not consider it proper to ask him to serve the warrants, as has been done in the previous indictments.

The indictments were issued immediately after the appearance of Lamberson, who professed to know nothing of the reputed graft. He also denied receiving any "cut" or

New Homes 21

With the start of construction of another new home yesterday, the years total was boosted to 21 and the total building permits to $101,320.

Mary F. Ring was granted a permit in the office of A. J. Hurley, city building inspector to construct a cottage and garage on Thirty-fifth street between Barrett and Roosevelt avenues. The structure to cost $4500 will be built by George J. Gordon.

The Community M. E. church was granted a permit to reconstruct a one car garage on Twenty-first street between Roosevelt and Clinton avenues at a cost of $75.00.

Honolulu Has Coldest Day

HONOLULU T. H., Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Honolulu had its coldest day in 21 years today—and practically no one knew it.

The mercury dropped to a low temperature of 56.7 degrees this morning. Only once before had the weather been as "cold" as that, when in February, 1909, a temperature of 56.6 degrees was recorded.

But cold weather, after all, is comparative and the tourist population swam at Waikiki Beach unconscious of the fact that native old timers or "Kaminas," as they are termed, whose blood was thin from a lifetime spent under warm Hawaiian skies, were shivering beneath heavy topcoats.

Detectives Son Sent To Jail

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—UP—Herman Cline, Jr., 24 year old son of a former chief of detectives for the Los Angeles police department was confined to the county jail tonight to serve a 761 day sentence. He was convicted on a failure to provide charge.

HALF-LOAVES—AND HOPE

ESTHER ANSUBEL was thirty-two years old and tired of waiting for romantic love. It seemed to her the only excuse for existence. So she left her family and her home, went to a friend's empty apartment, stuffed up the cracks in the doors and windows and turned on the gas. She was found dead in New York, the other day, beside her the following pathetic explanation of her suicide:

"It is surely no delight and pleasure to live and walk around with an aching heart and an entirely aching body. Work as we have spoken of would not remedy me. I am not in need of activity—but joy—love, and without that I can't exist.

"I have hoped and waited for it to come but it didn't. Some people are strong and can go on living and make life interesting, but without love I can't."

Since Esther Ansubel is beyond condemnation or pity, why, it may be asked, should we comment at all on her unhappy case? Our excuse is simply that she carried to a tragic conclusion a mood—more than that, a state of mind—from which too many other young women suffer, as we and other writers receiving the confidences of such women are in a position to know. There are too many in the thirties—yes, even in the twenties—who are convinced that the love for which they long, the love given to and received from a lover, has passed them by. And even though most of the disappointed keep on living, they confess to themselves—sometimes to us—that they do not want to live. For they still believe that, even for a modern woman in a modern world, love is the greatest thing.

WE AGREE with them—call us hopelessly bromidic, old-fashioned, sentimental, if you will. But, if there's one truth which living forty-odd years teaches even a romantic woman, it is that while love may be the greatest thing in life it is not the only thing, that love is a splendid part of life but life is the whole, that—outside geometry as in it—the whole is greater than any of its parts.

Without smugness, with all the sympathy in the world for such girls and women as Esther Ansubel, who want romance and do not find it, we beg them, in a great man's phrase, to see life steadily and see it whole. For we honestly believe that never before did life award so many consolation prizes to the woman who misses the grand prize of a happy love. To change the figure, she can have half-loaves galore, and they are better than no bread.

TO-DAY the young woman who is physically and mentally normal can prepare herself for independent and interesting paid work. If she is wise in choosing her job she may literally "work off" much emotional frustration and discontent.

Then, her work, or rather her earnings from it, may supply other half-loaves. If she is ambitious and makes the best use of her opportunities she may obtain for herself a pleasant home (even in one or two rooms), the chance to travel, satisfying friendships, books and music and a dog, pretty clothes, indulgence in a favorite sport or hobby, holiday joy in the beauty of sea or hills.

These are real satisfactions, tangible reasons for being alive, even though a woman has neither lover nor husband; and such satisfactions are to be won by many who, fifty years ago, would have been "hopeless old maids."

FINALLY, many need not be "hopeless" even of finding the true romance. Here, too, is one of the modern world's changes for the better, so far as women are concerned. What we mean to emphasize is that, nowadays, young girls no longer monopolize all the chances for love and marriage.

No woman in the twenties—or, for that matter, in the thirties—need be despairingly certain that romance has passed her by. She simply does not know what happiness may lie ahead. Love—joy—all that poor Esther Ansubel thought could never come to her, because she was thirty-two—may have been waiting for her around the corner of the years. Romantic love may lie over the horizon of any woman of thirty-two who has kept herself, as women do nowadays, young and lovely in heart and mind, as well as in mere appearance, who has kept her ideals and refused to cheapen them.

The word for her is not despair of life, but courage to live it. Then, whatever comes, the courageous woman, accepting her destiny, may say at the end, in the beautiful words of Thornton Wilder's "Woman of Andros":

"I have known the worst that the world can do to me and nevertheless I praise the world and all living. All that is, is well. Remember some day, remember me as one who loved all things and accepted from the gods all things, the bright and the dark. And, do you likewise."

TRAITRESS

All night we glided o'er the polished space
In measured cadence to the music's singing,
A dipping, whirling, swirling sort of pace,
A joyous thing, akin to wild birds winging . . .
All night we danced together, just we two,
And looked as if we heeded but each other,
What would you say, my dear, if you but knew
That all the while I thought about another?

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER

Speaking of poetic justice, is anything sweeter than the latest fashion report from the Custom Cutters' Club that men, in order to look well beside their longer-skirted womenfolk, must have their coat-tails cut longer? The very man who beams approvingly on the ridiculous skirt-tails which drip below some women's coats, is the man who loathes his own coat-tails even at their present length. Now he too must suffer in order that manufacturers may sell more cloth—and serve him jolly well right!

HEARTS

Fine hard particles of ice
From the north—sleet—
Changed to snow
That melted at a touch.
Her indifference to him
Whom she loved
Turned from ice to snow because
She loved him much;
Melted in a smile
And froze again.
It is that way with women
And with men.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The Lenten season is upon us, and Ash Wednesday falling upon March 5 brings Easter April 20, a little later than for several years. In homes where Lent is strictly observed dishes that may be served on fast days will be much in demand during the season of sackcloth and ashes. The days of abstinence from meat are Wednesday and Friday of each week and, in addition, most of Holy Week.

NANCY DORRIS

Vegetables, sea food of one kind and another, fresh water fish, dried legumes, nuts, cheese and eggs appetizingly prepared form main dishes that go far toward compensating the abstaining ones during the penitential period.

Some of the dishes served at the Lenten table deserve recognition in households where the forty days of fasting are not in force. Such a treat as shrimps and rice in Creole sauce comes to mind. In New Orleans the eating of shrimps, oysters and crabs is not restricted to days of abstinence; shellfish is a delicacy to be enjoyed at will.

SHRIMPS A LA CREOLE

Sauce

Two cups canned tomatoes
One cup water
Two slices of onion
Five whole cloves
One-half tablespoon brown sugar
Three tablespoons butter
Three tablespoons flour
Cooking time: fifty minutes

Two pounds fresh shrimps
Boiling water to cover
Slice of onion; a bayleaf
A bit of pepper pod
One-half lemon, sliced
A handful of celery tops
One tablespoon salt
Cooking time: until pink, about five minutes
Two cups steamed brown rice, hot
Servings: five

Shrimps heated in a rich tomato sauce which has been cooked a long time do tempt the palate. A hastily cooked sauce, however, detracts from the pleasure of the dish.

In a small saucepan place the tomatoes, water, onion slices, cloves and sugar and cook gently but steadily twenty minutes. Melt the butter meanwhile and add the flour; blend with a little hot tomato juice and then stir into the hot tomato mixture. Stir until smooth and thick and strain. Season to taste with salt and pepper and simmer for half an hour.

The New Orleanian cook prefers boiling her own shrimps; yet canned shrimps cut the preparations, for they need merely washing, cleansing and reheating in the sauce. To boil the shrimps, wash them and plunge into boiling water to cover, about three cups. Add the onion slice, bayleaf, pepper pod piece, sliced lemon or one-half cup vinegar, celery tops minced and a tablespoon of salt. Cook five minutes when the shrimps will show pink. Cool in the liquor, drain and peel; remove black intestinal line.

Place the peeled and cleansed fresh boiled or canned shrimps into the hot sauce, let heat through five or ten minutes. Serve on a platter with towers of hot steamed brown rice showing through the red sauce, at luncheon or dinner.

Modernizing the Home

Capitalizing Odd Architectural Features

By Alma Zaiss

My dear Miss Zaiss:

I am very much interested in your article on "Modernizing the Home" and trust that you will be able to help me in combining what I have plus new articles to make my living room up to date.

On the opposite page is a crude drawing of my living room. Drawing was never a strong point with me. As to the furnishings, the secretary is rather large, of mahogany wood; also radio, table, end table, smoker. The Lawson couch is covered with king blue mohair. Cogswell chair is covered with mulberry frieze with silk frieze back and top cushion in floral design. On the floor we have an Oriental rug—mulberry background. The windows are curtained in a gold mesh material worked by drawstrings. The French doors are also curtained with the same. My walls are the ordinary stippled cream color panels. Ceilings are about eleven to twelve feet high.

If it is possible to get a cosy, informal effect with the modern pieces I would welcome any suggestions you may offer. Otherwise would you suggest a suitable arrangement of this room? We should have another upholstered chair, new lamps, pictures, end tables and whatnot.

(Mrs.) R. S.

Here a Catercornered Window Furnishes the Centre of Interest

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

HOW many home-makers—we wonder—contemplate their rooms with dissatisfaction, not realizing why present schemes fail to express the full measure of charm and interest that is desired for them?

We are very sure that the peculiar placement of her windows has caused Mrs. S. much concern, and that the friendly possibilities of the slant-wise window have not yet made themselves known to her. For the original floor plan shows that this corner of the room has been practically deserted. Undoubtedly, in its unbalanced position, the irregular feature appears to be a sad mistake. But a little study convinced us that a very inviting group can be built around it.

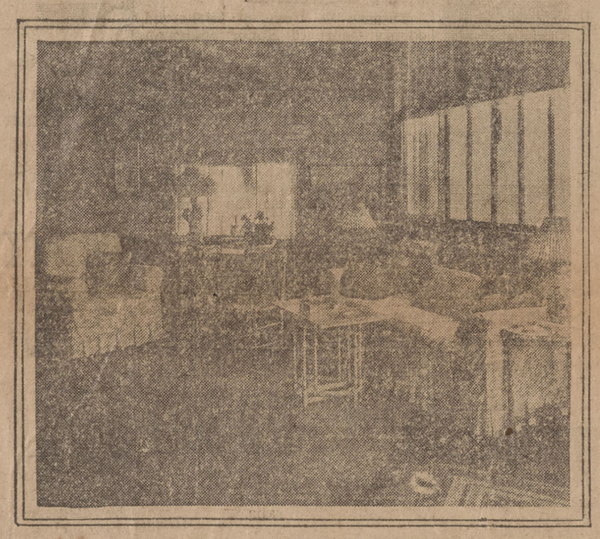
In making recommendations for Mrs. S. then, we have taken the cater-cornered window for our centre of interest, and beneath it have planned a treatment which gives the room a most homelike appeal. The 20-foot space needs several important groups for seating. Instead of buying another big chair—why not have a comfortable love seat and a pair of small tables for the window corner, and use a larger table and the Cogswell for the space to the left?

The illustration shows how a similar treatment was worked out in one charming home, and the realities of the photograph tell more graphically than we could by sketch or description just how satisfying such an arrangement may be.

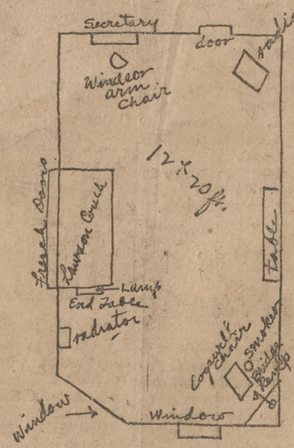
We are a bit puzzled by the notation of "French doors," with the sofa drawn before them on the right-hand wall of Mrs. S.'s original plan. Are these doors not used? Or are they French windows? If the love seat is bought for the corner window, it would be best to move the big sofa to the left-hand wall and add a medium-sized, low-backed overstuffed chair and a table to complete the sofa group. Then, as we visualize the room, the long table could be placed at right angles to the French windows, as indicated on the diagram of rearrangement. In this position it may be used as a reading table, with a bench on one side and a comfortable open-arm chair on the other.

Mrs. S. asks if a cosy effect could be had with modern pieces. To be sure. But she should consider carefully the furnishings already in the room. The Oriental rug with its mulberry background, the secretary, the Windsor chair and the Cogswell—all in mahogany—do not call for frankly modern companions, although they would not be unfriendly to a diplomatic modern touch.

We had pictured a pie-crust table and other reproduction pieces for the new additions, but, if well chosen, one or two of these pieces could just as well follow the newer lines. And the fabric chosen for the slip-covers could be a modern printed linen, if desired. Many charming new designs are so handled that they can be used with equal success in either modern or conventional rooms.



TREATED SOMEWHAT IN THIS MANNER, THE DIFFICULT PART OF THE ROOM IN QUESTION WOULD BECOME ITS MOST INVITING FEATURE



ORIGINAL FLOOR PLAN

With the colors already established by the cream walls, mulberry rug, king's blue couch and gold draw curtains, we suggest a figured linen having a cream or golden yellow ground with figures showing mulberry and blue. This to be used for the love seat, the Cogswell and the new chair by the sofa. The bench could have a loose cushion of king's blue velvet, repeating the blue of the sofa. The new open-arm chair may be upholstered in goldwool damask or (if the modern theme is introduced) a dull surfaced, gold-colored cloth in one of the new rough weaves.

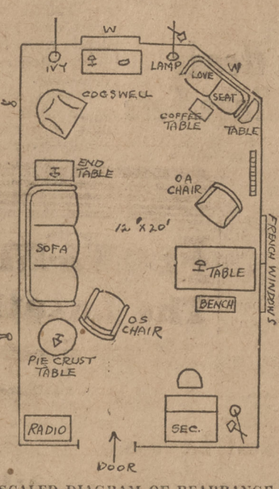
(We might add in parenthesis that, although the present color of the Cogswell chair is not inharmonious, we have advised the new slip-cover in order to eliminate the large floral design of the cushion and back. The plain mulberry used for part of the upholstering would have been quite all right in the general scheme. But the usual floral mixture combined with plain frieze is far from artistic and invariably spoils the good effect of a room.)

We must not forget that the wall above the sofa should have a lovely colorful picture that is large enough to balance this wall; and two smaller pictures may be used at either side of the French windows. Lamp shades should be plain and of a soft gold color.

This completes the suggestions for our first problem, and outlines an arrangement which should prove quite attractive. In recommending the changes and additions it is apparent that, in its broadest sense, modernizing the room has meant rearranging it; turning its architectural faults into an excuse for pleasant groupings; balancing its colors and concealing the offending feature of its one doubtful piece—the Cogswell. Whether the new pieces and fabrics are modern in feeling is not half so important in the task of improving this particular scheme as are these simple steps toward up-to-dateness which have little to do with mere style.

Mrs. R. H. says:

I have just started to furnish my living room (of a three-room apartment. Will you please help me? So far I have a hand-carved Prime Vera glass top French coffee table, another higher occasional carved table—top about 20x20 in. I intend getting a Persian rug and do not know what kind of couch and chair or color. I have selected a small love seat, but do not know in what to have it upholstered. Room has cream walls.



SCALED DIAGRAM OF REARRANGEMENT

I will greatly appreciate any information you will give me. I will get my things this week. Will you please help me?

We cannot make definite recommendations for Mrs. H., for no dimensions have been given for the room.

If the Persian rug is bought its colors will govern the selection of colors and fabrics for upholstering. Mrs. H. should choose the two colors she likes best in the rug, use the predominant color for the covering of the couch (or love seat) and one chair, and the second color for another chair. Wool damask, velvet, or antique satin would seem to be suitable fabrics.

As nearly as we can tell from the inadequate floor plan, good living room pieces in addition to the two tables already purchased would be: A medium sized Lawson sofa or love seat, a Lawson or Colony club chair, an open arm chair that is comfortable, a secretary and a longish table with a mirror above it for the entrance wall. We should have a better plan of the room, however, in order to be sure that the pieces recommended will fit.

This answer is printed in an effort to help other readers see how much definite and helpful advice is missed when problems are not fully presented.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

YOU cannot give without having; therefore, the thing to do is to GET, and you never get anywhere unless you start from where you are.

The most generous people in this world are those who have nothing to give, and the busiest people I know are those who are always "going to" do something.

Last, but not least, you have to give in order to get, and to this crowd belongs the man who says: "If I only had," &c.

All life is EXPRESSION.

PRE-REVOLUTIONARY WAR STUFF

THE Anti-Saloon League is importing a pre-war exhibit to help along its cause. The exhibit is Zaro Agha, a Turk, who has never drunk a drop of liquor and was born in 1774. That makes him pre-Revolutionary War.

Mr. Agha is a man of 156 years or 173 years if you add him up on a Sears-Roebuck calendar. He is so old he could have voted for Thomas Jefferson for President. But the chances are he voted against Thomas Jefferson in one of the Philadelphia wards. The point is that Zaro Agha is a man of great age. If a quart of cider had been bottled when he was a baby it would be Napoleon brandy now.

The Anti-Saloon League is bringing Zaro Agha to America to show what can happen by letting booze alone. If he should come on the boat that brings Miss Greece, Miss France and the other candidates for Beauty Queen of the Universe, Mr. Agha and his wrinkles will be lucky to make page 19.

Mr. Agha comes from an old Turkish family. When he was a youngster in 1785 his daddy pointed out the evils of liquor and got him to joint the Constantinople Total Abstinence Society. Little Zaro promised he would lay off wine, but maybe he would double up on his quota of women and song. So he promptly learned to strum a zither and looked about for the nucleus of a harem. His pappy patted him on the back and slipped him a hunk of Turkish candy.

* * *

So Agha lived to a ripe old age. While Bacchus over in Rome was getting pie-eyed, and Ganymede and other Grecian sots were trading hip flasks, Agha stayed on the water wagon. He never so much as took a tablespoon of Peruna before or after meals.

In time abstemiousness began to tell. George Washington, Louis XVI. of France, George II. of England, Frederick the Great of Prussia and other scofflaws all died off, but Zaro Agha remained. It was quite a stunt in longevity.

And now Zaro Agha is coming into his crowning glory. He will be whisked to America to show the citizens what can be accomplished when a man thrusts aside the flowing bowl and slakes his thirst with old oaken buckets and individual drinking cups.

He will be photographed, with all his wrinkles, beside F. Scott McBride and Ella A. Boole. Then he will be whirled around the country like the Liberty Bell or Our Gang or Rin-Tin-Tin. The populace will gaze on Agha and they will promptly take the pledge to drink no more liquor. Or maybe they won't.

* * *

Anyway, Zaro Agha is in for a bang-up time. He will be photographed and become as famous as Tut-ankh-amen. He can give out statements in Turkish to ship news reporters. Mayor Jimmy Walker will receive him and give him the key to the city. Dudley Field Malone may even become his business manager and route him all over the country in a tank act, living and diving in pure city water.

Zaro Agha will work hard for the cause of temperance. Though he toils through late hours and on long Pullman jumps, he will thrust aside all proffers of liquor. So he will never require a Turkish bath to look fresh.

When his temperance mission is accomplished, Zaro Agha will sail back to Turkey to live to the ripe old age of 200. And America will settle back to its steady drinking.

Substituting the Siren Complex for the Inferiority Complex

ONCE upon a time there were two sisters. Both were young and one had sex appeal. The other was quite as good looking but few people ever thought so because she had a deep, deep inferiority complex. And where there is an inferiority complex, there can be no sex appeal, as well you know.

FRANCES OLIVIER

For the sake of clarity we shall call the first sister Laurel and the second sister Caligula. Quaint names, aren't they? Now Laurel devoted most of her spare time to studying and appraising her face and figure and personality, and the rest of the spare time giving herself beauty treatment. But Caligula poor wren, devoted no more of her time, spare or any other kind, to her appearance and personality than life in a civilized community demands of its members. In other words, Caligula was "clean and neat."

We need not tell you that Laurel had all the boy friends while Caligula had none. But we simply must tell you—since it is the point of this story—how one of Laurel's mistreated donors of theatre tickets, flowers, candy et al., went once to Caligula and like the serpent in Eden hissed, "Get wise to yourself, sister."

Caligula thought maybe she had halitosis or something—that being the way of all flesh with an inferiority complex—until everything was explained to her. "Listen," said the beautiful snake who had been rejected by Laurel, "your eyes are as pretty as Laurel's and your hair's a whole lot prettier. And say, I never noticed it before, but your features are positively beautiful. Of course, I needn't say anything about your skin and your teeth, you must know they're great. . . . You know, Caligula, the only difference between you and Laurel? Laurel's sold on herself!" And with that the lean and sinuous gentleman took himself off. Proving that his motive was honest, albeit a trifle mean.

And like all fair femininity, after such an episode, Caligula flew to the nearest mirror. For the first time in her life she began to study and appraise herself. And she found herself fair, much fairer, in fact, than her famed sister. She "got wise" to herself and she spent a little thought and time and money on staging herself, her eyes, her hair, her features and so forth. And soon she was completely sold on herself. Nor was it long before the inferiority complex was supplanted by the siren complex. Which finishes the story of the two sisters. (Of course you know that the siren complex is the magic wand that fetches a girl just about everything.)

Now the moral of this story is: Put not your faith in serpents (though Caligula would never be where she is now in Hollywood had it not been for a serpent), but put rather your faith in yourself. In other words, be sold on yourself and stop envying the Laurels.

Ways With Lace

THE lace frock is the smart late winter type for formal afternoon, Sunday nights and evening wear, given the sponsorship of leading designers. The restaurant and dining frock has long sleeves with applied flounces, the separate lace bolero, the soft full skirt reaching well down toward the ankles.

Sheer black Chantilly lace is lovely for the evening gown, especially when designed with the capelet sleeve and the flounced skirt. The most fashionable lace gown is ensembled with a separate bolero, a rather tailored jacket of the same, or a tie-on cape.

Upon occasions when it is desirable to wear a hat with the lace frock, that of sheer lace hair is chosen in a color to match.

Society and Club News

LOCAL WOMEN AT MARTINEZ CLUB SESSION

Mrs. James McVittie, Miss Grace Lowell and Mrs. S. S. Ripley represented Richmond clubs at the annual Contra Costa county federation meeting in Martinez yesterday.

Miss Lowell, president of the Junior Club Mendelssohn, was one of the club presidents to present reports of the year's work to the county group.

Prior to the luncheon the women heard a talk on the care of deaf and deafened children. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Thomas Hanna, chairman of the department of public welfare and industrial and social conditions.

During the luncheon music was played by the Martinez high school band.

The speaker at the afternoon meeting was Mrs. Allen Blaisdell, who with her husband is director of the new international house at the University of California. The house was made possible through the gift of a large sum of money by John D. Rockefeller.

Mrs. Blaisdell declared that the house will be finished by the next fall term.

CHIEF COOPER IN TALK TO HIGH P. T. A.

A plea for housewives to be careful and guard against fires in the homes was made by Fire Chief William P. Cooper in an address before the members of the high school P. T. A. yesterday.

Chief Cooper told of the common causes of fires in the homes and stressed the danger of improperly handled electrical equipment, such as irons, washers, and curlingirons. He demonstrated his talk.

Miss Louisiana Scott, Child Welfare official for this county, was another speaker on the program. She told of the work being accomplished in the county, declaring that an effort is being made to have a child guidance clinic established.

Mrs. W. V. Keltz was in charge of the meeting, and refreshments were served by Mrs. E. H. Woodfelt.

Mrs. Charles Hall, Mrs. C. Tuttle and Mrs. P. A. Transue were in charge of the program.

The nominating committee will make its report at the next meeting of the association on April 9, it was reported yesterday.

DINNER, PLAY PLANNED FOR LOCAL CHURCH

A dinner and play to be held in May were planned by the executive board of the Missionary society of the First Christian church yesterday at a meeting in the church parlors.

Rev. Primus Bennett and Rev. R. Smit, of Berkeley, addressed the board on missionary work. Rev. Smith told the members of some of the missionaries that he knows.

A large number of members of the board attended the meeting.

CIRCLE NO. 1 WESLEY AID HAS SESSION

Mrs. Norah Glover presided over an important business meeting of Circle No. 1 of the Wesley Methodist Ladies' Aid society yesterday in the church parlors.

Plans for future events were planned by the group. Refreshments were served.

MOOSEHEART LEGION PLANS WHIST PARTY

Clare Barry, senior regent of the Richmond Mooseheart Legion once again served a banquet "all on her own" after the meeting in the Moose hall last night.

During the meeting it was announced that a public whist party would be held next Wednesday night, and that no meeting would be held. Mrs. Daisy Mayo, Mrs. Clare Barry, Mrs. Maude Lowery, and Mrs. Frances Northcutt are in charge of the whist.

That the local Legion would cooperate with the Richmond Moose lodge in a picnic on May 4, was also decided at the meeting. The picnic will be held at California Park, and extensive preparations are now being made to insure its success.

No one at the meeting last night can recall how the subject came up, but the women of the Legion are supremely confident in their ability to overcome all obstacles, and have decided to have a meeting which will be devoted entirely to plumbing on March 26.

Mrs. Marie Lee Kelly, chairman of the discussion to be held, while refusing to divulge particulars, declared the meeting would be well worth attending, particularly for those who know nothing about the subject. She will be assisted in the discussion by Mrs. Ethel Ten Eyck and Mrs. Mayo.

MRS. HUDSON HONORED AT W. B. A. MEET

One of the largest number of members recorded in the past few months attended a meeting of the W. B. A. in the Memorial hall last night.

During the meeting, a service call was made, to interest new members and to induce the old members to keep up attendance records at the meetings.

Coming as a complete surprise, a birthday party was given Mrs. Hudson, president of the group. She was presented with a beautiful purse in honor of her birthday. The tables in the banquet room were beautifully decorated in the St. Patrick Day motif, and a delicious banquet was served. Mrs. W. W. Scarlett, Mrs. Grace Schimpff and Mrs. Bobby Gibson were in charge of the party.

The Westway Sewing club will meet at the home of Mrs. E. J. Murray, 1814 Gaynor avenue on Mar. 26, according to an announcement last night.

A report was made by members of the sewing club on a recent trip to the women's ward of San Quentin prison. The members made the visit as the guests of Mrs. Mary Jesse and her daughter Mrs. J. H. Fletcher, whose husband is an official at the prison.

They were shown through the dining and recreation halls, rooms and cells of the new building and pronounced themselves as very impressed with the cleanliness and comfort of the prison.

FINAL SESSION OF NURSING COURSE HELD

The last of a series of home nursing courses sponsored by the Richmond P. T. A. was held yesterday at the Lincoln school auditorium with a large crowd in attendance.

It was planned at that time to hold a course in the fall. Local physicians will be invited to address the mothers. A "Well Baby" clinic will be held later in the year it was decided.

The P. T. A. yesterday extended its thanks to the Red Cross, the Richmond Health Center and the Cottage hospital for the aid that they had given to the course during the six weeks it was in progress.

Mrs. M. M. Smith, a nurse, delivered a majority of the lectures during the course. The mothers were taught care of the sick in the home and methods of taking care of children.

Officials of the P. T. A. stated yesterday that the course was one of the most successful ever attempted here.

ZEPHYR LODGE ENTERTAINED WITH SOCIAL

Members of the Zephyr lodge last night enjoyed a "basket social" at their meeting in the Odd Fellows hall. J. C. Hitchcock acted as auctioneer, and from reports drove many a hard bargain.

Delegates will be appointed next meeting to attend the Rebekah state assembly at the Oakland Auditorium May 13, according to an announcement made last night.

Many of the local members are planning to join Rebekahs from this district to visit the orphans' home in Gilroy on Mar. 22.

The social committee for the next meeting was appointed, and consists of Mrs. Mabel Mason, Mrs. Emma Morelli, Mrs. Edith Nystrom, Mrs. Rita Nixon, Mrs. Olive Arnold and Thomas Nixon.

UNITY LODGE MARKS SIXTH BIRTHDAY

The sixth birthday anniversary of Unity lodge, Daughters of St. George was observed in the Memorial hall last night with a hard time party.

A large number of members, their families and friends attended the affair.

A delicious banquet was served under the supervision of Mrs. Bessie Medlicott who was assisted by an able committee.

The tables were beautifully decorated in the St. Patrick Day motif and an enormous birthday cake was in the center of each table.

Dancing was enjoyed after the banquet.

Germans Pass Young Plan By Record Vote

BERLIN, March 12.—UP— The Reichstag finally ratified the Young plan today, opening the way to ratification of the "final and complete" reparations settlement by other countries and the evacuation of the Rhineland by French troops.

The vote on the historic measure, which requires Germany to pay by 1988 a sum having a present value of about $9,000,000,000, was 266 to 193, with three abstentions. A few minutes later the eRichstag passed the Yonng plan again, together with a moratorium clause and the so-called Belgian Mark agreement, by a vote of 274 to 192, with three abstentions.

All other accords reached at the Hague received final passage. The separate debt treaty signed with the United States was ratified by a rising vote, with only the Fascists, Nationalists, Communists, Economic party and a few other deputies opposing.

The German-Polish liquidation agreement was adopted, 236 to 217, with eight absentions, showing strong opposition even among the government parties.

Liquidation agreements with Great Britain, Belgium, France, Italy, Poland, Canada, Australia and New Zealand were then passed en bloc by a vote of 256 to 194, with eight abstentions.

To make the picture complete the Reichstag, by a vote of 307 to 150, adopted the new Reichsbank law, defining the national bank's duties in co-operating to enforce the Yonng plan.

All opposition parties then jointly moved that President Paul Von Hindenburg defer promulgation of the Young plan laws for two months. This motion requiring only a third of the chamber, was adopted, but the government parties immediately countered with a motion characterizing the laws as "urgent," which also was adopted.

It is now up to the president to decide whether the plan will be placed in operation immediately or delayed two months, so far as Germany is concerned. Little doubt was expressed that he would sign the laws themselves.

THE SHOCK OF FACING what your figure may become

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Record Amount Turned In For Christmas Seals

According to a report submitted this week by Thomas B. Swift, treasurer of the Contra Costa Public Health association, Richmond turned in the largest amount of this district in the Christmas Seal campaign. The district consists of Richmond, El Cerrito, Giant, Kensington Park and San Pablo. With still a few returns coming in, the contribution of the cities excluding Richmond was $1400. Pinole raised $128.27.

The county raised a total of $5251.14, of which $1312.78 goes to the Tuberculosis association of California, $786.41 for miscellaneous expenses and the remainder, $3151.95 is for use in Contra Costa county. Of this, $50 is allowed the Crockett Sunshine room and $3101.95 is for the Sunshine camp.

Mrs. R. G. Lee was chairman for Richmond; Miss Mamie Conlon for El Cerrito; Mrs. W. G. Jones for Giant and Mrs. T. M. Carlson for Kensington Park. Mrs. Fred A. Sill had charge of the Pinole campaign and Lawrence Silva directed the campaign at San Pablo.

DEAL PUT OVER IN LAUGHING LADY

Nine of the most distinguished-looking men in New York city were secured by Paramount to take part in a scene of the all-talking comedy - drama, "The Laughing Lady," which opens today for a 2 day run at the Fox-California theater. The scene is a bank director's meeting at a time when a big merger is being made with another bank. The other three directors on the screen 'board" are Clive Brook, Raymond Walburn and Hubert Druce, all well-known stage and screen actors.

Imposing Group

When the twelve are gathered at the long board-table they make an imposing sight. At one end is a man who might easily be mistaken for a church official. Next to him is a pompous-looking fellow who looks as if he might have been recruited from the financial elite of Wall Street. Opposite him is one who looks like a great "philanthropist." And so it is all around the table. All were recruited from the ranks of stage players in New York city.

Ruth Chatterton is starred in the production, which is based on the play success by Alfred Sutro. It concerns the moneyed folk of the metropolis and their didoes and foibles.

Schertzinger Directs

It is the second picture of Paramount's "New Show World" group to be directed by Victor Schertzinger. His first production was "Nothing But the Truth."

Included in the cast are Dan Healy, who recently played the part of a "hoofer" in Ziegfield's own screen production, "Glorifying the American Girl"; Nat Pendleton, former Olympic wrestling champion; Nedda Harrigan, Dorothy Hall, Lillian Brennard Tonge, Marguerite St. John, Alice Hegeman, Hubert Druce, and Joe King and other Broadway favorites.

"The Laughing Lady" is based on the famous stage success of the same name by Alfred Sutro. Ethel Barrymore played the title role which Miss Chatterton enacts in the film version.

Also talking riot of fun, "Dangerous Females," with Polly Moran and Marie Dressler.

RICHMOND C. C. URGES LINE TO ORIENT

Joining with the Oakland chamber of commerce, the Richmond chamber yesterday urged steamship lines to establish direct service from this city to the Orient with rates and service on the same basis as accorded to San Francisco.

A letter was sent by P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber, to the Pacific Westbound Conference following a meeting by the traffic committee headed by W. W. Scott, and read as follows:

"The Oakland chamber of commerce has before your conference a request for direct steamer service between Oakland and Oriental rates on a parity of rates with San Francisco. We also believe that the manufacturers, importers and exporters of the east bay industrial area are entitled to service and rates now restricted by your conference to San Francisco alone, and that the tonnage originating at and destined to the east bay cities justifies the relief requested.

"Several of your member lines call frequently at Richmond to load cargo lots of petroleum products and others and much additional tonnage can and will move via Richmond if your conference will permit receipt and delivery of the cargo.

"The Richmond chamber of commerce therefore asks your consideration of the available facilities and service, present cargo lot tonnage and frequency of calls by steamer lines at Richmond, and asks that any concession made at Oakland or any other eastbay ports be likewise applied at Richmond. In return, we can pledge the support of Richmond shippers, representing large tonnage, to those lines which accord Richmond the consideration and service to which we believe our port is entitled."

Sidewalk Driver Fined By Odell

Charged with reckless driving, R. H. Bazzell of West Richmond was fined $25 and sentenced to five days in the Richmond city jail by Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday.

Bazell, according to police reports, deliberately drove his car on the sidewalk between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets on Macdonald avenue.

At the meeting it was announced that the Division No. 2 party and dance will be held at the Hotel Alameda on March 20.

Deveney To Serve Sentence

Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday sentenced Thomas Deveney, 10, Tunnel avenue Richmond, to 90 days in the county jail, and fined him $200 on charges of reckless driving.

Deveney was arrested on the complaint of Edwin A. Beggs, 1219 Delaware street, Berkeley, who charged him with driving on the wrong side of Cutting boulevard, and colliding with his car near Tenth street.

1929 LICENSE PLATES HELD ILLEGAL

SACRAMENTO, March 12.— The Division of Motor Vehicles has put the ban on 1929 license plates.

Frank G. Snook, chief of the division, announced he had issued instructions to Eugene W. Biscailuz, superintendent of the California Highway Patrol to order state traffic officers to arrest any person driving on the public highways with the old plates and that police authorities and that other peace officers throughout the state had been notified of the order.

Those able to show evidence that they have made application for new plates will be allowed to proceed if not their cars will be impounded until they secure 1930 licenses at the double rate imposed on delinquents by law.

Snook said all applications received in proper form had long since been filled. A few cases reaain in which plates were held up because the applicant was unable to present the proper papers or the necessary legal information. Such persons will be allowed to drive so long as they are able to show they are actually making an attempt to clear up such difficulties.

There are also several thousand sets of plates on hand that have been returned because of the failure of the applicants to give the proper address despite repeated warnings.

Snook advises persons who have not received their plates because of a change of address to notify the division at once of the new address and to get in touch with the postmaster at the old address to see if the plates are being held.

"We feel that the state has been liberal with the motorists and that everyone has had plenty of time to get new plates," Snook said. "It now becomes our duty to stop all persons from driving who have not paid the fee required by law. It is unfair to the motorists who have complied with the law to permit the others to operate longer."

EXECUTIVE AID TO CENSUS IS PLEA OF C. C.

With the object of causing Richmond to make the best possible showing as regards its manufacturing and business situation, P. M. Sanford, president of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday urged the fullest possible cooperation by local executives in the forthcoming government census.

He declared that the census will reveal many facts in connection with industry and business and that the full story can only react to the benefit of this city.

Business specialists state that for many years manufacturers have been developing detailed information about production costs. Various specialists have compiled detailed costs in agriculture for the farmers' guidance, yet with the exception of a few college students, no concerted effort has ever been made to determine distribution expenses as it effects the retailer.

To assist the retailer to more efficiently handle his business, a number of different questionaires have been developed to secure detailed costs of doing business for both the wholesale and retail establishments.

Many Questions

These questionaires will include questions descriptive of the type of establishment, the kind of business, type of ownership, number of employes, rent paid and other overhead costs, amount of stock carried, net sales and similar information.

Upon completion of the distribution survey, the government will compile all of this information in report form for the general use of the public. In both the securing of the information and in its compilation all material will be kept in perfect confidence. "Under the law, no one not a sworn employee of the Bureau of Census will be permitted to examine your report, and no information can or will be given out by the Bureau of Census, either to other government bureau or to any individual, which would disclose exactly or approximately any of the figures of your report," is the wording provided in every form in accordance with the Census Congressional act.

Valuable Information

"Although figures are general, invaluable information will be available to bay region chambers of commerce and others working to bring new industries to this region," said the chamber announcement. "New industries considering the bay region desire to have authentic information on the possible market for their product. This census data will supply the necessary statistics."

In addition to helping community development, proper replies to the questionnaires will help every type of business to improve their methods and ultimately to make a greater profit. Every retailer will be able to compare his unit costs with the average unit costs of the grouped figures in his type of business.

Partial Sun Eclipse Will Be Seen Here

That a partial eclipse of the sun will be seen by Richmond residents April 28, was announced by Prof. E. G. Linsley, director of the Chabot observatory, in a talk given before the student body meeting at Richmond Union high school yesterday.

According to Linsley, people living in the northern part of Marin county will be able to see a total eclipse of the sun on April 28.

Linsley illustrated his talk with a number of slides taken through the large telescope at Chabot observatory. Pictures were shown of the flames that rise almost 200,000 miles from the sun's surface. Interesting photographs were also shown of the planet of Mars. According to the speaker, it is believed that the green portion on Mars is vegetation, while the white area at the top of the planet may be a polar ice cap similar to that on our own earth.

Slides were also shown giving views of the moon, Jupiter, and the stars. Linsley also demonstrated an apparatus showing the movements of the planets and the stars, which are really replicas of the sun which warms our own world.

KEYES NOW CONVICT 48218 AT SAN QUENTIN PRISON

A crowd of more than 250 persons gathered at the Southern Pacific depot yesterday morning to see Asa Keyes, former Los Angeles district attorney, as he stepped off the train enroute to San Quentin prison.

Keyes calmly obliged cameramen by posing for a number of pictures. He ignored the crowd.

SAN QUENTIN, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Fortified for the ordeal by an old philosophy which permitted complete resignation to his fate, Asa Keyes, the renowned prosecutor, became a convict today.

Alone in a cell of the "old men's ward," in crowded San Quentin prison, Keyes had become convict number 48218 tonight. The identity of the Los Angeles district attorney who was sentenced on charges of betraying the trust of more than a million residents in his county by accepting bribes while in office can never be lost in a numeral, however, even though he serves his entire term of 14 years.

Keyes rose too high in the world with his keen intellect to have his name forgotten and replaced by a number. When his punishment has been ended by time, a parole or death, there will still be men here whom he prosecuted and who will always know him as Keyes and not at 48218. His name will be recalled outside the drab walls in warnings against private gains by public officers.

Tells Philosophy

The authority of law who serves the people for 26 years in seeking heavy penalties for criminals asked "What is life?" as his downfall was completed and he entered the gates of San Quentin.

"We have an hour of consciousness and then we are gone," he answered the question himself, and appeared to gain strength from this thought to hide his nervousness, which was most apparent when he first sighted the prison through a haze.

The dignified, scholarly man must have suffered throughout the day. He had commanded most of his life and now he took orders to have a bath, to have his hair clipped short, be photographed in his convict uniform and patiently let his finger prints be taken. More than 2000 men and women he had sent through this procedure and he was forced to lower himself to their standard.

Convicted Many

Many of the inmates here at present can credit the once-praised oratory and careful presentation of evidence by Keyes for their plight. Most of them undoubtedly believe they received that which was due them, but there are some who feel his justice was not tempered with sufficient mercy and these may make Keyes' incarceration a troubled and nervous one.

Warden James Holohan has been plainly puzzled as to how he will treat the former district attorney. He once said he might have to devise a special arrangement to keep Keyes by himself. The prisoner will be left alone in the cell first assigned to him for several days at least, when Holohan may find a way to employ him and keep him without endangering his life. The greatest danger, Holohan said, is from prisoners not 100 per cent sound mentally who may hold a grudge against Keyes and might try to stab him in the back.

Shortly before he entered the prison Keyes said he hoped he could be liberated by parole in two and a half years. He must serve a year before his exact sentence is fixed.

Loses Citizenship

Keyes lost his citizenship when he handed his own commitment papers to Warden Holohan and signed the register. He can never again practice law. He is 54 years old and even a year here will change his appearance noticeably.

The deposed high official was convicted for accepting bribes from men who desired immunity after the collapse of the Julian Petroleum company. Thousands of persons, in other states as well as California, lost millions of dollars through an over-issue of stock. Many were surprised when he was convicted 13 months ago and a question, often debated, arose as to whether his reputation would ever fail him sufficiently to insure his confinement in San Quentin. It did and appeals to higher courts, ending with an adverse decision from the state supreme court, sealed his fate. He has declared his innocence and probably will continue to do so during his long term, but shortly before he entered he admitted for the first time that nothing could save him from staying as long as he is ordered.

Keyes looked strange without a brief case and pile of legal papers under his arm. The brief case became prominent during his personal investigation of the William Desmond Taylor murder case.

Other cases in which he was prominent included the prosecution of William Edward Hickman, who was executed; Dr. Thomas Young, accused of murder, who committed suicide in jail during the trial; Kid McCoy, who is chief of the fire department here now; the conspirators to kidnap Mary Pickford, screen star, who were given jail sentences. He made a careful survey of the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case.

KEYES PICTURES SENT TO POLICE

SAN QUENTIN, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Identification photographs and description of Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles county, were completed late today for prison and state files and police departments.

The pictures were taken before and after the former district attorney was "dressed in" and there was a marked contrast.

His head had been completely shaved, making his eyes appear deeper set and darker. In all pictures the corners of his mouth drooped and his short eye brows turned up as tho he were frowning or in serious thought. Four pictures had been taken. In the first profile, his chin was held up but after he had been attired in prison clothes it had dropped about an inch.

Beneath the second set of photographs taken was printed:

Gael Alumni Secretary To Attend Meet

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, March 12.—The Alumni association of the college today announced that Timothy J. Canty, executive secretary will soon go east to represent the association at two national conventions.

Canty will be in Washington, D. C. on April 25, 26, 27, for the annual meeting of the National Catholic Alumni federation, at which he will deliver a talk, "The Alumni—An Apportunity, Not a Problem."

As representative of District IX of the American Alumni council, he will also represent St. Mary's at the annual gathering of that group which meets this year at Amherst Mass., on May 1, 2, and 3. He was recently host of the ninth district of the American Alumni council at St. Mary's and entertained alumni officials from the college of five states.

Death Claims Worker After Long Battle

PORTLAND, Ore., March 12.—UP—Adrian Granby's heart kept its normal action for 30 hours after he had ceased breathing—but he died today despite unceasing efforts of fire department squad wagon crews to keep hi malive.

The 29-year old millhand—suffering from a brain tumor and unconscious—had been unable to breathe even with the aid of a pulmotor since 9:30 a. m. Tuesday. His heart action continued normal however.

He was taken to a hospital following an accident at a mill. Paralysis stopped action of the respiratory system and nurses and interns applied artificial respiration. They continued for hours and then a fire department pulmotor squad continued through the night. A second squad relieved them but Granby died this afternoon.

Town Saved In Brush Blaze

WEST PLAIN, Mo., March 12.—UP—Elijah, an Ozark town bearing the name of the prophet who went to heaven in a chariot of fire, was thankful tonight with its escape from going up in a cloud of smoke.

Forest and brush fires, which left black blotches on an Ozark landscape 20 miles long and seven miles wire west of here, were fanned by high winds to within 100 yards of homes an dstores of Elijah before fire fighters halted the blaze.

The conflagration which destroyed several farm homes, miles of fences, and took a heavy toll of farm property in western Howell county and eastern Ozark county, was brought under control by more than 300 fire fighters late today.

Several men and boys were overcome while fighting to save their homes, but no fatalities were reported.

JEWEL BANDITS ESCAPE IN S.F. CHASE

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Frightened from a jewelry store they were attempting to rob, by the sudden ringing of a burglar alarm, two bandits narrowly escaped capture, and were forced to flee without their loot.

Louis Aubert, proprietor of a Mission street jewelry store, was confronted by two men, one a Mexican, as he opened his shop this morning.

They forced him to open the safe for them, but before they could seize any of the jewels, Alex Wind, a watchmaker in a rear compartment of the store, overheard them and set off a burglar alarm.

The duo fled to the street, where they were nearly captured by the Rev. J. J. Paulsil, who was passing when the alarm started. In shaking off their captor, they dropped a small tray of inexpensive jewelry and watches that the sole loot they had taken.

Wind, meanwhile, had seized a revolver, and fired several shots after them as they drove hurridly away in a machine parked nearby.

Police, armed with a description of the car, are conducting an intensive search for the bandits.

Only One Pier Of Golden Gate Span To Be In Water

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Only one pier of the proposed Golden Gate bridge will be in water, according to new plans announced by Joseph P. Straus, chief engineer here today.

He said the span could be lengthened 200 feet so that the pier on the Marin county end would be on a rock foundation along the shore. The single pier in the water would be on the San Francisco side.

One thousand dollars was voted to make a traffic survey of points near the approaches to the proposed bridge.

K. P. In Plans To Attend District Meet

Final arrangements for attending the district convention Friday night were made at last night's meeting of Richmond lodge, Knights of Pythias in the Brotherhood hall.

The district meeting is to be held in Pinole and local members will meet at the Brotherhood hall at 7:30 to make the trip in a body.

D. S. Delaney, of Richmond lodge and district deputy grand chancellor will preside at the meeting.

William H. Hong, chancellor commander presided at the meeting last night, and with the regular officers, conferred the page rank on a class of candidates.

Bridge Will Aid Martinez Traffic

MARTINEZ, March 12.—Figures taken of the traffic count, at three intersections in Martinez last week which were released today, showed that existing conditions would be relieved by the erection of the proposed Green street bridge.

The traffic count was taken by members of the Junior traffic reserve, under the direction of O. K. Smith of the Martinez Chamber of Commerce.

Smith declared that the condition of the road over Alhambra Creek hinders the relief of cross-town traffic, which has been alievated somewhat by additional traffic over Brown street.

Alhambra Creek road, according to Smith, is a mass of ruts and holes and has never been paved.

OLD TIMERS TO BE FETED AT ST. MARY'S

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, March 12—Old-timers of the class of 1872 will fraternize with their younger brother of 1929, at the annual home coming day to be held on the St. Mary's campus Sunday.

Harry L. Day, 1858, prominent mining man of Wallace, Idaho, and San Luis Obispo, California, has been appointed general chairman of the day and toastmaster of the annual homecoming dinner.

Seminars in education under the direction of William R. Lowery, San Francisco attorney and Sylvester Andriano, San Francisco supervisor feature the morning session of the convention.

A triple athletic program is scheduled for the afternoon. It includes an Irish marathon around Lake La Salle, and intercollegiate baseball game with Santa Clara and a punting contest for the James M. Smith trophy, in which many of the Gael football stars will compete.

Among the speakers at the alumni dinner are James L. Hagerty, 1919, head of the philosophy department at St. Mary's; Milton Coghlin, 1923 attorney of Santa Cruz and Brother Agnon, oldest teaching brother at St. Mary's, who is familiar with all the old boys, having taught at the college for over forty-five years Harry Bertain of Napa, a graduate of 1929, will represent the younger group of graduates, answering the toasts of the old-timers.

Skit Will Be Given At School

RICHMOND HIGH STARTS TRACK PRACTICE

Signs of a sensational Richmond Union high school track team came to light yesterday afternoon when preliminary tryouts for positions on the squad were held on the local high school track. Old veterans showed improvement over their standards of last year, while several youngsters who recently graduated from the junior high schools gave a startling exhibition of speed.

The long legs of Ed Masek, sophomore, carried their owner through the 100-yard dash with flying colors. Masek will certainly be one of Richmond's best bets in the Alameda County Athletic league track competition. "Rusty" Lane and Howard Dalton, both veteran high school athletes, also showed a fine brand of speed in the dash, while Cecil Bowman, a senior, lived up to the reputation made last year as a junior.

Richmond high should certainly not find any trouble this year with the sprinters.

Grover Johnson and Bill Young are probably Richmond high school's best athletes in the half mile event. In spite of his lack of lanky limbs, young Johnson has made quite a stir in sport circles at the high schools because of his ability to make those legs move. In last night's tryouts, Johnson ended in first place in the quarter mile as well as ending in the one-two-three class in the 880-yard run.

Bill Young, who captured several places last season, also circled the track in the half mile run in fine style. As soon as Young gets his muscles into good condition, he ought to be quite an asset to Richmond high in the 880 grind.

A big surprise was handed Coach Phil Hempler in the mile event. Cessario finished first in last night's tryouts. This long legged athlete is a sophomore at the high school, and should be a sensation by the time he graduates. "Skip" Albert, Richmond's best bet in the mile last season, also made a steady run last night, taking second place in the event. "Skip" was taking it easy last night. When running for big stakes, he ought to be able to enter the one-two-three class.

Although no tryouts were held last night in any events other than the 100 yard dash, 440, mile, and half mile, Hempler has a general idea of the boys that will go far in other track events. These aspiring athletes have been undergoing strenuous practice during the past two weeks, and are now making good in their special events.

Aldo Bravin and "Rusty" Lane are, according to Hempler, Richmond's best prospects in the hurdles.

Johnny Babich and Aldo Bravin are close rivals for the discus and shot honors. Both these boys captured imposing totals in last season's inter-school track competition. Lawrence Dunleavy has been doing fine work during the past week with the javelin. The javelin throw is an innovation in track at Richmond Union high school. Paul Maloney and Dunleavy are making long distances in the broad jump event. Maloney rated highly in last year's squad.

Richmond high's greatest weaknesses are found in the high jump and pole vault. No veterans are as yet available for entrance in this event, although several neophytes have been valiantly striving for the necessary height. Only one veteran, Charlie Jackson, is ready for action in the pole vault. Jackson did fine work in that event last year, and he is still trying for new elevations.

Richmond Union high school will open its track season tomorrow when it clashes with University high and Berkeley high schools at Bushrod park, in Oakland.

The local high school inter-class track meet scheduled for tomorrow has been postponed until a future date. The annual cross country run will probably be held toward the end of the local track season. Last year, more than 40 runners entered the annual classic.

RODENT LOSES ON BASEBALL DIAMOND

(By James Smith)

Beware, rodent population of Richmond! The sharp shooting big game hunters are out for blood!

If inquisitive little squirrels continue to poke their noses out of their underground holes in the center of baseball diamonds, and if the youths of the community maintain their sensational ability to throw things, there will soon be a serious decrease in the squirrel population of Richmond.

What so many unsuccessful gardeners have failed in doing was successfully done by chance yesterday by Wilson Locke, a member of the baseball squad at Richmond Union high school. The youthful sharpshooter was cavorting around the high school athletic field when he suddenly espied a little gray lump that hadn't been there a minute before. Locke had his suspisions, so he scouted around for a suitable weapon, and chose a stick for his villainous purpose. He aimed, fired, and a member of the animal kingdom leaped from his lair very badly scared. The direct effect of the barrage was partially obscured by the weeds hiding the entrance to the underground home. However, the gray haired nut cracker lost his head in the emergency, and made full speed for the bleachers at the side of the athletic field. Stealthily, the adventurous hunters cornered their prey, till at last George Weeks pounced upon the bushy tailed mammal, ending the thrilling chase.

Then Benny Hoefer, who boasted the knowledge of how to carry a squirrel, toted the unlucky one to the high school gymnasium, where it was safely imprisoned. George Weeks, the hero of the chase, then assumed responsibility for the captured animal, and Fuzzy-Wuzzy was transported far away from its happy home.

So let this be a warning to all ground squirrels in the vicinity of Richmond that little squirrels who wish to witness baseball games should not do so from the middle of a baseball field.

BUSY DAY FOR ATHLETES AT LOCAL HIGH

Tomorrow will be an exceptionally busy day for the athletes of Richmond Union high school, as two baseball contests and a track meet will engage their activities at that time.

The local high school varsity nine will travel to San Leandro to tangle with the San Leandro high school aggregation, while the Richmond high school B's baseball squad will meet the boys from Crockett high school on the local high school diamond. While these baseball contests are in progress, Richmond high school's track men will be in action at Bushrod park in Oakland in a three cornered meet with University and Berkeley high schools.

It has been a difficult task for the local high school coaches to assign definite sports to all-round athletes. Track men such as Babich and Stoddard will be required to play with their high school nine therefore causing a serious drain on the resources of the local track squad. However, Coach Phil Hempler has succeeded in lining up a strong track team without the aid of the baseball nine, while Ivan Hill, baseball coach, still possesses an unspoiled aggregation.

For the first time in baseball history at Richmond high school there will be a B baseball outfit, which will see almost as much action as the heavier boys.

Richmond will take part in its baseball tourney in the Alameda County Athletic league next Tuesday when it will meet the Centerville high school athletes on the Centerville diamond.

The boys who will travel to San Leandro tomorrow are: Rosano, Ball, catchers; Lemon, Bono, pitchers; Scarcella, Baxter, first base; Viano, second; Stoddard, Sanfilippo, shortstop; Rolino, Degnan, third; Rogers, Heise and Babich, outfield.

The members of the Richmond Union high school B team that will take part in tomorrow's contest with Crockett are: B. Miller, Aussez, catcher; DeCorten, Marcus, Corazzo, pitchers; Collins, first base; Outman, second; Meyers, third; Humpherevs, shortstop; Transue, Troutman, Juillerat, Shubat and Kenney, outfields.

TENNIS CLUB PLANS MANY MATCHES

That 57 matches have been played in the Richmond ladder tennis tournament since it began three weeks ago, was announced by Carl Petersen, tournament chairman, at a meeting of the Richmond Tennis association last night. The final matches will be played next Sunday.

A report was also made by A. S. Remell, chairman of the inter-club competition committee. Remell announced that the state inter-club tourney may begin Sunday. If not, the Richmond tennis team will play the Island City tennis club of Alameda Sunday on its local city hall courts.

The tourney will include eight singles and four doubles. The local athletes who may compete in the singles are C. Bryant, Jimmie Hurley, C. Petersen, Jack Murdock, Phil Carlin, Childs, Irwin Sutton, and M. Truitt.

Changes Seen

Richmond's entries in the doubles will probably be C. Petersen and C. Bryant; Reese Hayes and Jimmie Hurley; Darrow and I. Sutton; and Jack Murdock and Phil Carlin.

The present ratings in the local tennis club may be changed by next Saturday's round of the local ladder tournament, therefore making changes in the tennis team that will play Sunday.

Plans were laid at last night's meeting for a social to follow the regular tennis club meeting April 9. Zara Truitt was appointed as chairman of arrangements for the affair.

Report Made

A report was made last night by Bill Regalia on the annual dinner of the California Lawn Tennis association held recently in San Francisco.

Several professional players from Berkeley spoke before the local tennis club on the organization of tennis classes in Richmond.

Last night's meeting of the Richmond Tennis association was attended by the largest crowd to be present at a meeting of the club this year. Enthusiasm has greatly increased as a result of the ladder tournament now being held, and it is expected that the tennis team representing Richmond in the state inter-club competition will receive strong support from local enthusiasts.

Bartell Signs With Pirates

PASO ROBLES, March 12.—UP—Dick Bartell, Pittsburgh shortstop, came into the Pirate fold today by signing a contract reported to call for $7000 for the 1930 season.

The strain of watching clever Benny Sankey, Southwestern league recruit, perform in the short patch, was believed to have proved too much for the holdout. All Pirates except Burleigh Grimes, pitcher, have signed.

Oaks, Stars To Attend Banquet

The Oakland and Hollywood baseball teams will be honored at a luncheon to be given April 8 at the Oakland Elks club.

The luncheon is being arranged by the Emeryville Industries association. Joseph R. Knowland, Oakland publisher, is chairman of the luncheon.

Junior Rifle Club Plans Whist Party

The Richmond Junior Rifle club will entertain at a public whist party April 18 at the Redmen hall.

One of the prizes will be a Krag rifle, according to an announcement made yesterday.

Prizes are being donated by local merchants.

Nebraska College Has Student Prize

LINCOLN, Neb.—Creation of a prize of $25 to be presented annually to the freshman man or woman who made the greatest triumph over heavy odds in obtaining an education, was announced by Chancellor E. A. Bennett of the University of Nebraska.

4 BALL STARS THREATEN TO QUIT

NEW YORK, March 12.—UP—Four prominent major league stars threaten to quit baseball unless they are given better contracts than their respective clubs have offered them.

They are Freddy Lindstrom, New York Giants' third baseman; Babe Herman, Brooklyn outfielder; Art Shires, Chicago White Sox first basement; and Goos Goslin, Washington outfielder.

Lindstrom is the only one of the quartet at his team's training camp but he is quoted as ready to go home unless he gets the same salary he received last season.

"I have been cut $2500, and I won't stand for it," declared Lindstrom.

Babe Herman, who finished second to Lefty O'Doul in the National league batting race with an average of .381, is at his home at Glendale, Calif., and promises to stay there unless he receives a $25,000 contract. Herman has been offered $15,000, a $4500 raise over last year's salary.

President Frank York has sent word to Herman that $15,000 is positively the Robins' top figure, but still the hard-hitting but erratic outfielder refuses to budge.

History May Repeat

Any doubt as to who will win the argument between the Chicago White Sox and Art Shires is dispelled by a review of the case of Dickie Kerr, who remained out of baseball an entire season several years ago when Charles Comiskey refused to meet his demands.

Shires is asking for $15,000 and the White Sox are understood to have offered him $7000.

"Why, that's a minor league salary," said Shires. "I won't play for any such sum."

Goslin has announced he would rather build houses at Salem, N. J., for a small sum than accept $10,000 a year from the Senators. Goslin led the American league in batting in 1928 with an average of .379, but dropped to .288 last season, so Clark Griffith slashed his salary from $17,000 to $10,000.

A report that Goslin remarked that he did not want to play under Manager Walter Johnson anyway has aroused President Griffith and he may make the big carpenter explain before allowing him to join the Senators, if and when, he does sign a contract.

ATHENS CLUB 5 OUT OF U. S. TOURNEY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 12. UP—The ever dwindling contenders for the National Amateur union basketball crown tonight prepared for the final drive which will be climaxed in the championship contest Saturday night.

The tournament, which opened here last Saturday night, originally included 45 teams, one less than the record enrollment of 46 last year.

In the opening game the East Central Teachers five from Ada, Okla., nipped the hopes of the Goodyears of Akron, Ohio, when they won a torrid game, 28 to 12.

Athens A. C. of Oakland, Cal., found the Bethany College five from Lindsberg, Kan., too strong and was eliminated when it lost a fast game, 32 to 17. The Pacific coast basketeers were leading at the half, 12 to 10, but were unable to continue the pace during the second period.

For Athens, Ford, a forward, starred, scoring two field goals. Furcell, Ford's running mate and scoring ace in the Athens-Rockhurst college of Kansas City game, was closely guarded by the Bethany men and was held scoreless.

Larson, center for the Kansas five, proved the scoring ace of the game, gathering five field goals and nine free throws.

The game was one of the upsets of the tournament, the Pacific coast club being regarded as one of the strongest entered.

In one of the most thrilling games of the tournament the Murphy-Did-It's five of Omaha, Neb., overcame a lead of the Phillips "66" of Bartlesville, Okla., to win 30 to 29, with a last minute field goal.

Led by the lanky Okerbur, Olympic club center, the San Francisco Olympic club blasted the hopes of the University of Wyoming quintet defeating them 40 to 30. The game started off with both teams evenly matched, but during the second half, the Pacific coast five outdistanced their Rocky Mountain rivals. Okerburg accounted for 19 of the team's points, scoring eight field goals and adding three points from the free throw route.

Kansas City Athletic club eliminated Los Angeles Athletic club five, in a rough and hard fought game which the locals won, 36 to 16. The K. C. A. C. five took the lead early in the game.

Edwin Arlett With Acorns

The old saying "It runs in the family" might be aptly applied to the case of the Arlett tribe of Richmond. "Pop" Arlett, at present employed at the Standard Oil plant at Richmond, gained renown some years ago as a Coast league player. His brother "Buzz" Arlett is also a well known diamond athlete, and now one more name is being added to the long baseball roll of honor possessed by the Arlett family. Edwin Arlett, son of "Pop" reported for action yesterday at the Oak's training camp at Fresno.

According to Carl Zamloch, manager of the Oaks, if Edwin's ability on the diamond is similar to "Pop's" Arlett junior will have nothing to worry him concerning his baseball career. "Pop" and Zamloch both broke into baseball at the same time some years ago.

Married Golfer Denies Elopement

MIAMI, Fla., March 12.—UP—Al Watrous, Detroit golfer, eliminated from play in the International four ball golf tournament here, expressed incredible astonishment late today when informed of a report he had eloped with Dolly Arney, Kansas City, beauty, fourth place winner in the pageant of beauty last night.

"I've been married ten years and have two children," gasped Watrous.

WOKING, England.—A referee does not wear a cap because he must keep his head cool, according to the essay of a Woking schoolboy.

Golfers Qualify After Playing In Pitch Dark

MIAMI, Fla., March 12.—UP—Probably the greatest golf match of the entire winter season was completed in almost pitch darkness here early tonight, as the veteran Cyril Walker and his comparatively "dark-horse" partner, Clarence Camber, Bocaraton, Fla., won their way into the finals of the $5000 international four-ball tourney of the Miami country club.

The Walker-Gamber team eliminated the favorites of the tourney, Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, one up at the 39th hole.

Walker and Gamber thus earned the right to meet Harry Hampton, Chicago, and Neil McIntyre, Indianapolis, in the finals of the rich event. Hampton and McIntyre had surprised the gallery by vanquishing Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., and Densmore Shute, Columbus, O. one at the 36th hole of the other semi-final.

3 Florida Swim Marks Shattered

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Preparatory to a determined assault on world's women's swimming records, state competitors today smashed three Florida marks in preliminary events to the National Women's Senior A. A. U. meet.

Babs Beckwith, Coral Gables, Fla., won the 500-yard free style event in 6:59 2-5 and the 220-yard free style swim in 2:51, then led her city's relay team to a 4:22 2-5 victory in the 300 yard medley relay.

The GREEN GODDESS

by LOUISE JORDAN MILN

Copyright, 1922, by Frederick A. Stokes Company

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Lost in the fog, out of petrol, Dr. Basil Traherne lands his airplane in the hostile Himalayan kingdom of Rukh whose English-educated Raja appears to be friendly. Traherne's passengers, Major Crespin and his wife, are estranged through his dissipation. Traherne is in love with his friend's wife but loyal to Crespin, whom he is trying to reform. Crespin is jealous and the men are near a quarrel. They learn that the Raja intends to yield to his people's demand to sacrifice them to the green goddess if his three half-brothers, under sentence of death in India for murder, are executed. The Raja gets a wireless message that the execution of his brothers is set for the next day.

"Some day," Dr. Traherne said wistfully, "we may look back upon it as on a bad dream."

"He does you well, curse him," Crespin cried. "They served me a most dainty chota hazri this morning, and with it a glass of rare old fine champagne."

"Yes," Traherne commented, "the Orientals know how to refine cruelty to the nth degree, when they choose. Where does that door lead?"

"To a billiard-room. Billiards!" Crespin laughed.

"And this one?" Traherne went on.

"I don't know. It's locked—and a very solid door, too."

The Raja liked their pluck

"Do you know what I think?" Traherne spoke low.

"Yes," Crespin replied instantly. It's probably the wireless room."

They looked at each other, significantly—saying nothing.

"And what's out here?" Traherne pointed to the window.

"Take a look."

Traherne crossed the room, and leaned over the window's sill. "A sheer drop of a hundred feet!"

"And a dry torrent below," Major Crespin added insinuatingly. "How if we were to pick up our host, Traherne, and gently drop him on those razor-edged rocks?"

Traherne's eyes glittered, but he shrugged discouragingly. "As he remarked last night, they'd tear us to pieces the quicker."

"If it weren't for Lucilla, I'm damned if I wouldn't do it all the same," Major Crespin muttered.

Again they stood and stared into each other's faces — sharing a thought, baffled, at bay, but not defeated yet.

CHAPTER XXV

SEVERAL moments passed, and neither moved, neither spoke again, neither lowered his eyes.

They stood so when Rukh strolled into the room, debonnaire, spick and span in the latest Bond Street Rotten Row attire.

He accosted them instantly, jauntily, and hospitably. "Good-morning, Major! Good-morning, Doctor! How do you like my snuggery? I hope you have slept well?" Neither answered him. "No? Ah, perhaps you find this altitude trying? Never mind. We have methods of dealing with insomnia."

Antony Crespin answered him then. "Come now, Raja," he complained lustily; "a joke's a joke, but this cat-and-mouse business gets on one's nerves. Make arrangements to send us back to the nearest British outpost, and we'll give you our Bible oath to say nothing about the—pleasantry you've played on us."

"Send you back, my dear Major?" The Raja held up slim horror-shocked hands, but his dark eyes danced wickedly. "I assure you, if I were ever so willing, it would be as much as my place is worth. You don't know how my faithful subjects are looking forward to tomorrow's ceremony. They are children, and they are demented with their childish joy and anticipation of tomorrow. If I tried to cancel it, there would be a revolution. You must be reasonable, my dear sir."

Crespin turned on him furiously. "Do you think we would truckle to you, damn you, if it weren't for my wife's sake? But for her we'll make any concession—promise you anything."

"What can you do that is worth a brass farthing to me?" Rukh retorted vehemently, pent up ferocity storming out from angry voice, hate-full eyes and eloquent, quivering hands. "Asia has a long score against you swaggering, blustering, whey-faced lords of creation, and, by all the gods! I mean to see some of it paid tomorrow!" His show of storm ceased and he added suavely, "But in the meantime there is no reason why we shouldn't behave like civilized beings. How would you like to pass the morning? I'm sorry I can't offer you any shooting. I mustn't lead you into temptation. What do you say to billiards? It soothes the nerves. Here is the billiard-room. I have a little business to attend to, but I'll join you presently."

"Of all the infernal, purring, devils—!" Crespin broke out, beside himself with fury and impotence.

The Raja laughed indulgently. "Dignity, Major, dignity!"

Crespin, almost demented, raised a threatening hand, but Dr. Traherne interposed and shepherded him into the billiard-room. And almost at once, Rukh, listening, heard the steady click of the billiard-balls.

They were playing the game again—and the Raja's face lit with an admiring smile. He liked their grit.

They were whispering, scheming, planning, of ourse, though no sound of it reached him where he sat at the writing-table. Let them. They were welcome to plan what they would. They were powerless to do anything.

Rukh drew a pad of paper a little nearer his hand, picked up a pencil, pressed the bell beside him.

"Your 'Ighness rang?" Watkins said, in a few moments, at the door.

"Come in, Watkins. Just close the billiard-room door, will you?"

The valet glanced into the billiard-room as he was obeying. "They're good plucked 'uns, sir; I will say that," he blurted out admiringly.

"Yes, there's some satisfaction in handling them. I'm glad they're not abject—it would spoil the sport."

"Quite so, sir," was the grim response.

"But it has occurred to me, Watkins, that perhaps it's not quite safe to have them so near the wireless room. Their one chance would be to get into wirless communication with India. They appeared last night to know nothing about wireless, but I have my doubts. Most British service officers know something of it now. Tell me, Watkins, have they made any attempt to bribe you?"

"Not yet, sir."

"Ha, that looks bad. It looks as if they had something else up their sleeves, and were leaving bribery to the last resort. I want to test their ignorance of wireless. I want you, in their presence, to send out some message that is bound to startle or enrage them, and see if they show any sign of understanding it."

"That's a notion, sir," Watkins exclaimed with a grin of applause. Rukh grinned back at Watkins. "But I can't think of a message."

The Raja walked to the door of the wireless-room, paused suddenly, and fingered the lock, making sure that it was well secure. And as he stood doing it the ayah opened the corridor door, and Mrs. Crespin passed by her into the snuggery.

Rukh went to her quickly. "Ah, Mrs. Crespin, I was just thinking of you. Won't you sit down?"

"I thought my husband was here," she said coldly.

"He's not far off. Just wait in there for a few minutes," he told Watkins, pointing to the wireless-room, "I may have instructions for you."

Watkins went at once, unlocking the door of the wireless-room with a key on his own ring, and closed it carefully behind him.

Then the Raja continued. "Do, pray, sit down. I want so much to have a chat with you. I hope you had everyhing you required?"

"Everything," she replied indifferently.

"And you slept—?"

"More or less," she said with light contempt.

"More rather than less, if one may judge by your looks," the Raja of Rukh told her with something of warmth and admiration.

"Does it matter?" she retorted scornfully.

"What can matter more than the looks of a beautiful woman?"

"What's that?" she exclaimed, lifting her head suddenly, and listening.

"The click of billiard balls. Your husband and Dr. Traherne are passing the time."

"If you'll excuse me," she said, as she rose, "I'll join them."

PARKER FACES PAVE GRAFT TRIAL

The sensational "city hall split" disclosure, which came as a climax to the biggest graft expose in Alameda county, was made by W. J. Curran, Hollywood contractor who paved Excelsior boulevard.

Strange 'Obstacles'

His testimony told the story of an outside contractor who entered the Oakland field and encountered strange and mysterious obstacles. He quoted Van Noy as the authority for the alleged "City Hall split."

He declared in his testimony that two days after he had made Van Noy a royalty payment of $5000 the paving man came back, declared he was broke and asked for more money.

Curran stated that when he asked him about the $5000, Van Noy declared he had to split it four ways at the City Hall.

Curran continued, testifying that in the same conversation, Van Noy said: "We have four votes in the City Council, and from now on Parker is going to walk the chalk line for us."

Work Of Combine

That obstacle after obstacle was thrown in his way while working on the Excelsior avenue job was also related by Curran. He said he believed this was the work of the so-called Oakland "combine."

Finally determining to fight back Curran said he rumored it around that he was to put in a bid on the Ashby avenue paving and another job in East Oakland.

Curran declared he did not put in the bids, but merely wanted to be left alone on the Excelsior job.

That Oakland contractors were highly wrathful and had cut the bids $19,000 to keep him out was also testified by Curran. He declared he obtained this knowledge through one of his engineers.

Sturgis As Attorney

The Grand Jury was also told by Curran that at the outset of the contract, he was advised by an Oakland bond house to employ Commissioner E. K. Sturgis as his attorney to pass on the legality of the City Council proceedings. When he learned that Sturgis was a member of the city council, Curran testified he protested to the bond house but was told that it was all right for him to retain Sturgis.

The bond on the paving contract which cost $86,000, was placed at $130,000. Curran said he investigated and discovered the bonds on other paving were usually 60 percent of the contract price.

More Trouble

Curran went on in his testimony declaring that he had trouble with the East Bay Water company which at first refused to tamp ground that had been disturbed in laying new pipes. Later Curran said, after he had threatened to plant a steam shovel in the street and force the water company to tunnel, the company agreed to tamp.

In his testimony Curran accused the city inspectors of attempting to slow down the job by interfering with the cement mixing, and charged an Oakland rival with interference in the grade cutting.

Woman Injured Cleaning Gun

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—UP—A stomach bullet wound suffered by Miss Mary E. Romine, 41, was received while cleaning a revolver she told police today. Her mother lives in Urbana, Ill., and had made her a present of the gun. Miss Romine's condition was serious.

Banker Cashes Check Written In Radio Style

SPOKANE, Wash., March 12.—UP—This Amos 'n Andy business is getting serious.

A check for $200 on "The Great Home Bank" of radio fame was cashed here today. A practical joker wrote the check for a friend who took it to one of the vice presidents of a large Spokane bank.

The official paid the sum without hesitation. The joker sent the cash back later advising the official that although the figures $200 had been written on the side, the writing of the total sum read "two and no one hundred dollars."

The vice president gulped—and bought cigars.

Knight Errant Robbed Of $50

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—UP—John Tampoada, nearing his home early today responded quickly when a woman called for help from a nearby doorway. The would-be knight errant found the woman holding a revolver in his direction. Tampoada was forced to donate $50.

Motorists Fined In Justice Court

Three motorists were fined a total of $30 in the court of Justice of the Peace Arthur A. Alstrom yesterday.

J. J. Fenix, of Richmond was fined $5 for driving without license plates; F. Parra paid $10 for driving without a certificate and only one headlight and W. F. Phillips was fined $15 for driving on the lefthand side of the road.

1930 Budget For C. C. Announced

In a report by the finance committee, submitted by Fred Caudle, chairman, finances for the year 1930 for the Chamber of Commerce were budgeted yesterday. The expenditure of $8688, which is available through regular pledges to chamber of commerce work, is provided for in the report.

Officer Tries Death After 105 Burn To Death

CHINKAI, Korea, March 12.—UP—So keenly did he feel that it was he who was responsible for the disastrous fire which took 105 lives Monday when the naval station auditorium burned, that Captain Sukeo Takahashi, adjutant of the naval station, today attempted suicide. His recovery was not expected.

WOMEN LAUD DRY LAW AT HEARING

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Prohibition again claimed a heavy share of attention here today.

More than 30 women dry leaders besieged the House pudiciary committee declaring the fight to retain prohibition as a woman's fight, and doggedly insisting enforcement conditions must be cleaned up at any cost.

While the women were testifying, attorney general Mitchell appealed to the Supreme Court to rul whether the purchaser of liquor is equally liable with the bootlegger.

Light Beer Asked

The president's law enforcement commission, in executive session, heard Rep. Dyer, Dem., Mo., urge legalization of 2.75 per cent beer and wine, questioning whether such beverages would be intoxicating in fact and within the prohibition of the Eighteenth amendment.

Messages endorsing prohibition were sent by Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William J. Bryan, and many others.

Mrs. Louise Jerome Johnson, wife of a Harvard professor, testified she had not seen a Harvard sturent drunk in ten years and said her husband never had smelled liquor on a student's breath since federal prohibition began.

Tourists Drink

"I never heard of corn liquor," she said in answer to a question.

When Mrs. Clarence Busch, Miami Beach, Fla., state representative of the Woman's National Law Enforcement committee, appeared to testify, Rep. LaGuardia, Rep., N. Y., said: "That's a nice dry city."

Mrs. Busch insisted it was the tourists, not the permanent residents in Florida, who drink.

Lauds Dry Law

Mrs. William Alexander, Columbus, O., hailed prohibition as the "miracle of the ages," but asserted the nation was "reaping the harvest sown by corrupt officials."

The climax of the women's barrage came when Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, presented the fourteen points in the creed of hr organization, calling for action against lawless and anti-prohibition officials at any cost.

The creed declared the liquor buyer is equally guilty with the seller; that the diversion of money which formerly went for liquor to purchase of radios, automobiles and home comforts, justifies prohibition; that prohibition has brought personal liberty to women formerly enslaved by drunken husbands; that there is no authority or precedent for a national prohibition referendum.

The ladies lost but few arguments with the committee during nearly three hours of cross examination during the afternoon.

Legality Of Gas Waste Law Upheld

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—UP—The constitutionality of a state law limiting wastage of natural gas to a certain ratio for every barrel of oil produced was affirmed by Superior Judge William Hazlett today.

The court ruled that the attorney general has legal authority to bring injunction suits to enforce the act. Judge Hazlett did not set a gas-oil ratio, declaring that the ratio will depend upon evidence presented in injunction suits against operators of individual fields. Judge Hazlett ordered the injunction suits against the Santa Fe Springs operators, who contested the state's authority, to proceed.

Center Designation Sought By Town

VALPARISO, Ind. —(U.P.)— Hebron, in Porter county, has claimed to be the geographical center of United States industries. It is believed that the 1930 census figures will also place the town near the center of population.

AYRSHIRE NIGHT OBSERVED BY SCOTS

A crowd that filled the upstairs hall of the Richmond Clubhouse to capacity, last night attended the monthly social meeting of the St. Andrew's society of Richmond and vicinity.

Last night was designated as Ayrshire night, with members who come from Ayrshire providing the entertainment and banquet.

Peter MacCullum, president of the society opened the evening with a talk, telling of the method in which the social nights are now being observed by the group. Each meeting, a committe of members from the various counties, or Shires of Scotland take charge.

W. J. MacDonald, chairman of the committee for last night, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening. The committee was composed of Robert Drennan, William Wallace, William Clark and John Tait.

MacDonald opened the entertainment with a talk on Ayrshire, and related many interesting and amusing facts about the Scotch county.

Mrs. Jane Kirkwood followed MacDonald, and gave an enjoyable talk on her former home in Kilbirnie, Ayrshire. Mrs. Kirkwood proved a fluent talker and amused the group by relating her story in a broad dialect.

P. M. Sanford, president of the Richmond chamber of commerce, delivered an address on the "Industrial Progress of Richmond," and told how Richmond was forging to the front in both industrial and civic affairs.

Following Sanford, came James Mitchell of Oakland with his bagpipes. Mitchell is an accomplished artist on the Scotch instrument and so well did he play, that many of the gathering were figuratively transported back to their homes in Scotland. He also played an accompaniment to Miss Joy Street, who gave a marvelous exhibition of the Highland Fling. Her dancing was well received by the gathering.

Several songs were sung by Miss Ruth McNully, who was accompanied by Mrs. Alexander Dawson.

Following the program the guests were seated at the tables and a bounteous banquet was served. Dancing to an old time orchestra concluded the evening's entertainment.

A large delegation of the society is planning to attend the stag party in San Francisco Monday night. The Oakland lodge will also be present and an excellent time is expected. Local members are planning to meet on the seven o'clock Richmond ferry and make the trip in a body.

P. G. E. FACES $75,000 SUIT

MARTINEZ, March 12.—J. A. and Ella A. Bennett, owners of a 250 acre delta district tract, asked damages of $75,000 from the Pacific Gas and Electric company, in a suit filed with the superior court here today.

In filing the suit, the plaintiffs ask the money for damages alleged to have been done to their property and crops through a fire that swept the acreage in June, 1929. The plaintiffs claim the fire started from the breaking of a power wire, through negligent construction of the line.

The suit replaces one started several months ago. The Bennetts are represented by Attorneys J. F. Hoey, A. B. Tinning and T. H. DeLap.

Doheny Trial Will Open At Capital Today

WASHINGTON, March 12.—UP—Opening arguments in the Doheny oil bribery trial start tomorrow before a jury o ftwo young business women, a widow, and nine men.

The jury, which will be kept locked up during the trial, was selected today after Justice William Hitz rejected two special pleas in abatement filed by the millionaire defendant. The charge against Edward L. Doehny is that in 1921 he gave Albert B. Fall, then secretary of interior, a bribe of $100,000 to influence granting of government oil leases.

In the pleas overruled by Justice Hitz defense counsel urged that a jury acquitted Doheny and Fall, in 1926, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government and that to try Doheny on the bribery charge would be to place the defendant in jeopardy twice on similar accusations.

Selection of the jury was the only business of the opening day of the trial.

The jurors for the most part are headline readers, persons who have ben little interested in the litigation and sensations arising from the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases.

The trial presents the familiar line-up of Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene as counsel for the government against Frank J. Hogan and his associates for the defense.

YOUNG SLAYER CHEATS NOOSE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Mar. 12.—UP— Jailers entered Charles Fray's cell in the death house at state penitentiary at McAlster near here early today to find his body dangling from the end of a bed sheet. He had cheated the gallows and died unmindful that his aged mother was making a last minute plea to save his life.

Fray was found guilty of killing his wife and was also charged with killing a former wife. The jury's verdict called for a death sentence and he was to be executed March 28.

ACTRESS FAILS TO RECEIVE $20,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 12—(U.P.)—Pleasant reveries of Edith Ransome, actress who gained fame as Tondeleyo in the play "White Cargo," regarding what one could buy or do with $20,000, were abruptly replaced by realism here today.

Miss Ransome went into superior court some time ago and demanded a large sum of money from Lionel Sampels and others because, she charged, they tumbled her out of a local theater in unceremonious manner.

By default, she secured a judgment for $20,000 against Samuels, who was once house manager of the Wilkes Theater here.

Samuels and Miss Ransome appeared before Referee J. V. Farley today—the actress intending to force payment of the $20,000 and Samuels to announce he did not have the money.

Samuels said the theater business for him has been in a slump and he has been reduced to borrowing money from relatives for existence. For that reason, he said, he cannot pay the $20,000.

Among other things, Miss Ransome had contemplated using the money for a trip around the world.
